FOR $34,000 THIS IS THE MOST LUXURIOUS TRIP TO ICELAND

Helicopters on call.

DAY 1

Take your private heli (which will always be on call, btw) from Reykjavik to Lake Mývatn—also known as Game of Thrones land. From there, the only way you can explore the volcanoes and crater row is by Super Jeep. You'll hike across lava fields and enter Lofthellir cave, which is filled with natural ice sculptures—making for some pretty incredible photos. You'll warm up in hot springs before lunch-ing at Vogafjós, a restaurant in a cowshed serving up local bites like Geysir rye bread (baked in the ground using geothermal heat) and smoked trout. You'll end the day at Mývatn Nature Baths, where you'll swim in a geothermal lagoon and steam bath, which is a centuries-old tradition.

Spend the night at Fosshotel Myvatn, an eco-conscious modern hotel.

DAY 2

You'll start your day at the must-see Dettifoss waterfall. From here, your private helicopter awaits to take you on an eight-hour (yes, eight!) tour of Iceland. You'll reach untouched places in the highlands, and Glacier Lagoon, where you'll take a private Zodiac boat tour.

DAY 3

More helicopters! Today you fly over the Ódáðahraun desert and spot the queen of all mountains, Herðubreið. Touch down on the Askja Caldera region for out-of-this-world (pun intended) lunar landscapes. And picnic on cool lava. This is ultimate Instagram bait.

DAY 4

You're not going to get any wifi out here. You'll Super-Jeep off to one of the most barren and remote highlands in Iceland—think hidden glaciers and rivers. The real highlight: You'll visit Sænautasel Turf House that was built into the earth for delicious pancakes, coffee, and to explore its unique design. Even pick up some Icelandic wool sweaters sold on the property.
